Worldwide Opportunities on Organic Farming

OVERVIEW

Worldwide Opportunities on Organic Farms, USA (WWOOF-USA) helps connect students with over 2,000 organic farmers nationwide. WWOOF is flexible and can be used for an internship, educational hands-on training, or a summer travel opportunity. The program is open to any students interested in sustainable agriculture, cultural studies, culinary arts, veterinary programs, health and nutrition, environmental sciences, and a wide range of other courses. College credit may be available. Summer opportunities are posted now! With farms in every state, and many welcoming students over summer break, WWOOF opportunities may be closer than you think.

THE WAY WWOOF WORKS

Visitors, or "WWOOFers," spend about half of each day helping on a host farm while learning about organic agriculture and sustainability. They receive free room and board during their visit - with no money exchanged between host farmers and WWOOFers. No previous experience is required as WWOOF is a learning opportunity. The length of stay is flexible from a week to a season.

SPECIAL STUDENT DISCOUNT
